The CWA was formed in 1922 when country women were fighting isolation and a lack of health facilities. Within the first year, the Association was a unified, resourceful group that was going from strength to strength. The members worked tirelessly to set up baby health care centres, fund bush nurses, build and staff maternity wards, hospitals, schools, rest homes, seaside and mountain holiday cottages - and much more. The women of the CWA have been initiators, fighters and lobbyists. They have made localities into communities by providing social activities and educational, recreational and

							medical facilities. TheCWA is the largest women's organisation in Australia and aims to improve conditions for country women and children. We reach that aim in various ways including lobbying for change, helping the local community, creating a network of support and meeting together in towns and cities. CWA of NSW is a member the international organisation Associated Country Women of the World, thought this organisation, supports rural women world-wide. Women from the country and the city in NSW and the ACT meet together to connect with others in their local area, fundraise and help set policies which are lobbied for at a state level. Members also enjoy cooking, handicraft, art and creative writing competitions as well as teaching skills to others.

That's why we focus on helping young Australians to overcome educational inequality caused by poverty. As a national, independent charity, every day we work with thousands of children and their families to help them unlock better futures for themselves. The Smith Family has been working to improve the lives of children living in disadvantage for 100 years. Over that time, The Smith Family has evolved to become a modern, dynamic, evidence-based organisation that helps children in need create better futures for themselves through long-term support for their education. Today we're supporting 62,822 students on our flagship Learning for Life program, helping to break the cycle of disadvantage through targeted, long-term support for their education – and we're expanding our careers education programs, providing even more opportunities to help students transition from school, tertiary education or training into the workforce. We meet monthly for a luncheon at the Warren RSL Club between 11.30am and 2.00pm with guest speakers.
